[About www.chip1stop.com]

This is an online store selling electronic components and semiconductors run by Chip One Stop, Inc.. Chip One uses this website to sell small lots of a wide variety of electronic components and semiconductors for trial production and development to buyers and those involved in design and development in the electronics industry, and delivers them quickly. As of 27 June 2015, there is a component database with information (specifications, stock, price, delivery, etc.) about approximately 15,000,000 items, and it is being used by approximately 192,500 members (approximately 73,400 companies).

The website with a product database of approximately 15,000,000 items is one of the largest in the world. There are approximately 2,300,000 items that can be delivered immediately. There are also several search pages that allow users to find products in various ways enabling items to solve problems during electronic circuit design to be found, products mentioned in news articles to be purchased, and products to be searched for visually with a selection guide, etc.

The delivery charge for orders totaling less than 5,000 JPY is 450 JPY when ordering products via the website, and 1,000 JPY when ordering via facsimile. There is no delivery charge for orders above 5,000 JPY.
